

THE BIGGEST DAY YET

AT THE VIRGINIA EXPOSITION.

About Twenty Thousand People on the Grounds. Including Many Children. Bicycle Races—To-day's Attractions.

The threatening clouds of yesterday morning soon drifted by, and the warm sunshine beamed down upon nearly 20,000 people who attended the Fair. It was truly a red-letter day in the annals of the Fair, and all day long the halls and grounds were literally thronged with people.

All of the incoming trains brought hundreds of visitors, and with the school-children and those released from labor by the holiday proclamations, the Exposition was crowded from early morning until after evening entertainments.

Many of the visitors brought luncheon with them, and all of the unoccupied spaces were taken up about noon with happy groups congregated around well-laden baskets. The dining-hall was well patronized, and all of the fruit stands did a thriving business.

A few of the games of chance were regulated, but invariably prizes of jewelry and other desirables were offered to the winners.

Special order was maintained throughout the day, and nothing occurred to mar the pleasure of the assembled multitude.

BICYCLE RACES.
The largest crowd of the entire Fair was present at the race-track to witness the final contests of the bicycle club. The excellence of the races on the previous day brought out all of the admirers of the sport, and the fence around the entire track was crowded by the enthusiastic throng.

The first event was a half-mile novice race for Richmond riders. Messrs. R. M. Bullington, E. T. Baker and L. M. Abrams were the starters. Mr. Bullington had the race well in hand from the start and won in easy shape. Time, 1:21.

The second race was for one mile, three minute class. Mr. Frank R. Steel and Mr. L. E. Mayo, of Portsmouth, were the starters. They both went to the three-quarter pole in a comparatively slow start, but in the stretch Mr. Steel made a splendid start and won in 3:31.2.

The half mile, ordinary race, was close and exciting. Messrs. Charles Wallace and Woodbury being the competitors for the prize. Mr. Wallace rode an Eagle wheel and Mr. Woodbury, a Columbia. This race excited considerable enthusiasm, and was won by Mr. Wallace in 1:12.

The next event was a two-mile handicap, with Messrs. G. F. Shaver, J. T. Temple and M. J. Straus as starters. Mr. Temple rode a splendid race and won in 6:32, with Mr. Straus as second. Time, 6:32.

The half-mile scrap race had the largest number of entries, and was in every respect a splendid race. Messrs. Bullington, Lewis, Steel, Temple and George Hilday were the contestants for the prize, and the riding was about the best of the races. Good time was made. Mr. Temple coming in a few yards in advance, with Mr. Bullington second. Time, 1:19.1-2.

The youths' race was one of peculiar interest, and was won by Mr. W. C. Foster in a solid and fast race. He is a son of Mr. W. W. Foster, and displays all of the requirements of a first-class cyclist. A. E. Etheridge and Walter Schaap were his competitors. Time, 1:26.1-2.

The two-mile race between Messrs. Charles Frischkorn and J. T. Temple was extremely interesting, and was highly contested from start to finish. Mr. Temple won by a few yards in 7:35.3-4.

The half mile dash for the championship of the Richmond Cycle Club was contested by Messrs. Steel, Temple and Straus. Mr. Temple was the favorite, and won with apparent ease in 1:17.1-2.

The concluding event was the championship of the League of American Wheelmen. Messrs. Bullington and L. E. Mayo competing. This was an exciting race, and was won by Mr. Bullington in 1:28.1-4.

The conduct of the races was attributed to the Richmond Cycle Club, and the riding was good in all respects, and the entire occasion one of quiet and prompt arrangement.

NOTES OF THE FAIR.
The handsome medal made and given by Messrs. Spott & Spott, our popular jewelers on Broad street, for the most attractive exhibit at the Exposition was awarded to Messrs. Johnson Brothers on their exhibit of pickles. This will be presented to-morrow at 1 P. M. by President Burford.

Messrs. A. K. & C. E. Schnap last evening entered formal protest with the executive committee of the Exposition against the award of the Spott & Spott medal to Johnson Brothers, pickle manufacturers, for the handsome exhibit.

Mr. Lewis D. Cronshaw, Jr., has written the following letter in regard to the distribution of the proceeds of the "Battle of the Crater":

To the Editor of The Times, city:
Dear Sir,—Having had many inquiries as to when settlement would be made for the presentation of the "Battle of the Crater," in answer, I beg leave to say that on Monday, October 10, 1932, by 10 o'clock A. M., I paid Colonel H. C. Jones, chairman of the committee on "Battle of the Crater," check for $866.50 for their proportion of Friday evening's performance, October 7, 1932. On Wednesday, October 12, 1932, I gave Colonel Jones check for $88.87 for their proportion of Tuesday evening's performance, October 11, 1932; and on Friday, October 14, 1932, I gave Colonel Jones check for $123.87, for proportion of Thursday evening's performance, October 13, 1932, and hold receipt for same. Very respectfully,

LEWIS D. CRONSHAW, JR.
Treasurer Virginia State Agricultural and Mechanical Society.

ATTRactions TO COME.
The management has arranged for a splendid exhibition of "Paris Paris" on next Monday, the occasion being colored people's day. A fine programme has been arranged for the day, and in order to make it popular, the prices have been reduced to twenty-five cents for adults and ten cents for children. The following programme has been arranged: Races, 12 to 2:30 (including tournament and horse race). Base-ball, 3. Dress parade, competitive drill at 4. Pie-eating match and climbing greasy pole at 5.

Negotiations are still pending for the production again of the "Battle of the Crater."

Some of the Exhibits.
H. M. Starke & Co. make a splendid exhibit of books of all kinds. Their booth, about the middle of the rear wall of the west half of the main building, is easily distinguishable from the others. A magnificent Sunday-school library, in compact sets of shelves, line one side, and showcases, displaying samples of fine stationery, the other. The centre is occupied by a tastefully arranged pyramid of State school books, and other available space is taken up with handsome school furniture. Pretty decorations in colored paper complete the finish to the booth.

RICHMOND CHINA COMPANY.
One of the most prominent, as well as one of the prettiest booths in the main hall is that of the Richmond China Company. The decorations are in refined tints of pink and cream. The large canopy covering their pyramidal display is no less artistic than the elegant high art goods and fine china ware exhibited below. At the other end of their large double space there is a table set in imitation of a dining table, with a magnificent spread of rare china, and fine lamps, bronzes, etc., completing the tasteful arrangement. Much fine is exhibited at the far end of the booth, where a counter covered with mechanical toys and fancy novelties is surrounded continually with buyers.

A BIG BOOK.
The great World's Fair register, eight feet high, exhibited by the bookmakers and binders, Jenkins & Walthall, attracts universal attention. The exhibit, while not elaborate, is unique to a high degree, and thoroughly illustrates their business.

FIELD AND GARDEN NEEDS.

The exhibit of field and garden seeds made by Messrs. T. W. Wood & Son can't fail to be of interest to every farmer, gardener or florist who enters the gates. Their display, just to the left of the main entrance door, is arranged in place of a practical hand, and not only the seed, but many of their products, are represented by splendid specimens. They offer a prize of twenty dollars for the best pumpkin, and ten dollars for the best beet raised from their seed, and the prize winners are on exhibit in the shape of huge specimens of each. Mr. J. B. Washington, of Woodford, Va., won the larger, and Mr. William Bagby, of Columbia, Va., the smaller.

Messrs. Wood & Son show quite a novelty in the "Wonderful Pea," a specimen of which they show sixteen feet high. This is a very prolific fallow pea, and being grown on an island in the Roanoke river for distribution next season, when it will be put on the market for the first time. Their display of flowering bulbs is quite large, and the entire exhibit is interesting.

THE PREMIUM AWARDS.

The judges appointed to award the prizes for the exhibits of horses made the following report yesterday:

Stallion, four years old and over—First premium, Glendower Stock Farm. Entire colt, three years old and under four—First premium, Glendower Stock Farm.

Filly, two years old and under three—First premium, Glendower Stock Farm. Yearling filly—First premium, Glendower Stock Farm.

Stallion, four years old and over—First premium, W. M. Watkins, Randolph, Va.; second premium, Cox & Brother, Burmuda Hundred.

Entire colt, three years old and under four—First premium, George W. Macon, Keswick, Va.

Pair of heavy draught horses or mares, in harness—First premium, Joseph Lassiter, Ky.

Stallion, four years old and over—First premium, T. B. Dowell, Dowell, Va.; second premium, J. J. Carroll, Ashland, Va.

Yearling colt—First premium, Benahan Cameron, Staigville, N. C.

Brood mare, four years old and over—First premium, J. J. Carroll, Ashland, Va.; second premium, Cox & Brother, Burmuda Hundred.

Filly, two years old and under three—First premium, B. R. Seldon, city. Stallion, four years old and over—First premium, W. A. B. McComb, Louisa, Va.; second premium, R. L. Bruce, Medlock, Va.

Saddle horse or mare, style, action, quality and variety of gaits, walking, especially, to be considered—First premium, C. D. Noel, city; second premium, W. M. Watkins, Randolph, Va.

THE NIGHT CROWD.
As night came on the crowd at the Exposition seemed to grow more dense. Some few of those who had spent the day in the surging mass left for their homes before dark, but their places were doubly filled by others from the city. The wide aisles of the main building continued to wave and surge as the tide of humanity flowed hither and thither.

At 8 o'clock the people began moving in the direction of the great exhibition of Paris from Empire to Commune. At 7 o'clock every seat was occupied, and still the people came. The scene for fifty yards around the entrance was a wonderful one, indeed. Such a solid mass of humanity is hard to conceive of. Nothing but the old expression, "packed like sardines," begins to describe it. Every body in the rear was pushing, and those in front could only get through the gate one at a time. Several children and ladies came near being seriously hurt.

The crowd was a good-natured one, and mingled with the jostling, the elbowing, and the "O Lordy" of the weaker ones, were many puns and jests.

When the performance began, shortly past 8 o'clock, every seat and all available standing room was filled. The gate receipts showed nearly six thousand people. Besides these there was a large number who preferred to view it from afar, and many were turning away who really desired to pay their quarter. The performance was good, and varied little from those previously given.

The fireworks were excellent, and elicited much applause. The last and grandest display was a representation of Niagara Falls, a sight magnificent and inspiring in the extreme. It was directed matter for all of the people to find conveyances back to the city, and many were forced to take a long and dusty walk.

JUSTICE JOHN'S COURT.

An Off-Day Among the Sinners Who Celebrated Columbus Day.

There was an air of holiday about the court yesterday morning. Justice John had on his Sunday clothes, as there is no civil docket on Columbus days, and he evidently had his mind made up to join the 15,000 other citizens at the Exposition grounds. The audience was not large, as the band going to Norfolk had about half of the regular customers following it along the streets.

Our folks here do not entreat much over Columbus, they have rather a more distinct love for John Smith, and, of course, the white contingent was represented about as usual.

Frank Henderson and Joseph Kelly were charged with running a shell game. Mr. G. H. Shinault, of Caroline county, came down to the fair. He is a farmer, and could probably tell all about the intricacies of the Ocala platform and Third party platitudes, but when it came down to guessing under what shell the ball rested, he knew no more about it than a state doctress in the admiration it receives. Mr. Shinault lost one whole dollar, and very properly he had the man arrested. Had he won the fakir's dollar he would probably have had old Caroline ringing with praises of the astuteness of the man who could come here and beat the sharpest. He would have given a barbecue on the ten times and invited the popular representative in the House of Delegates, but somehow or other he lost, and the game was broken up.

William Colquitt was charged with assaulting Martha Braxton (colored), and Martha was charged with trespassing upon the property of Mr. Colquitt. Martha was a domestic in Mr. Colquitt's home, and it was the old story of a "colored lady" in the kitchen who was more devoted to style than work. The costs were demanded only by the Justice.

Joseph Williams (colored) was fined $2.50 for beating Willie Richardson (colored) with a rock.

W. A. Jones and Stanley Leber were fined $2 each for being drunk.

Fleming Randolph (colored) was held to the hustings court for stealing a bag of potatoes and some flowers, the property of some person unknown.

Trainor blue and old rose are gradually usurping the gold and white combination as a color scheme for household decoration. All the models in furniture and stoves are hangings are now of these soft and pleasing tints, which are as lovely by gaslight, as charming in daylight, and which clash not at all with other tints and colors.

FOR Tired Brain.
USE BROWN'S ACID PHOSPHATE.
Dr. O. C. Stout, Syracuse, N. Y., says: "I gave it to one patient who was unable to transact the most ordinary business, because his brain was 'tired and confused' upon the least mental exertion. Immediate benefit, and ultimate recovery followed."

The shortest and quickest route to the Exposition is via Main-street electric cars to the Main-street car sheds, corner Main and Vine streets. From here it is only a short distance to the front entrance of the Exposition.

TRULY METROPOLITAN.

To-morrow's RICHMOND

TIMES will compare very favorably with the Sunday issues of the great metropolitan dailies, and it will positively be the most remarkable and at the same time the most attractive paper ever issued in Virginia. In its columns will be found many choice brain products, many clever sketches, many bits of hard literary work, intermingled and illumined with some of the finest engravings ever printed in a newspaper. The largest of these engravings will be a six column picture of the World's Fair buildings and lake with a list of the buildings, each of which is indicated by a number.

For the benefit of the ladies we will show designs of some very "swell" costumes, and give a description of each. One of them is an evening cloak in pink and brocade satin, which is lovely enough to make the feminine heart rave.

Another gives a view of two beautiful out-of-door gowns, which are distinctively French. Then there are charming gowns for early fall wear, visiting costumes, &c.

Of course the paper will carry its usual quantity of foreign and domestic news and departmental reading, but it will also contain some special illustrated articles of decided merit and information. One of these, an interview with Herrmann, the great magician, really possesses an amount of pleasant instruction rarely found in a newspaper. Herrmann was at the Theatre last winter, and the article in to-morrow's TIMES will tell you how most of his tricks are done.

An article on the elephants in Central Park, New York, will be found a very entertaining part of to-morrow's TIMES, and the reader will learn a good deal more about the huge animal that natural history tells.

A good story will be told in to-morrow's TIMES about a man who had a double. And the double came very near marrying the fellow's bride-elect.

Victoria Woodhull, wife of the London banker, is to take part in American politics. Her plans, her history and her picture will be given in to-morrow's TIMES.

These are by no means all the choice things our subscribers will have to read, but we mention them as samples of the rest.

The musically inclined will be glad to know that Sunday's TIMES will contain the Gilmore Memorial March, just composed in honor of the great bandmaster's memory and to be played by Gilmore's band.

Julius Caesar at the Theatre.
Richmond Theatre. Julius Caesar, tragedy in six acts, by William Shakespeare.

Marc Antony.....Charles Hanford
Marcus Brutus.....Bennett Matlack
Cassius.....E. R. Spencer
Julius Caesar.....Edward N. Hoyt
Portia.....Maria Drofna
Calpurnia.....Fannie Hoyt

There was a fair audience at the Richmond Theatre last night, the legitimate drama, as presented by Charles Hanford and his company, being the attraction. Considering that the three characters of Brutus, Cassius and Caesar are all star parts and have been played by the great actors alternately, an attempt at their delineation is always a bold venture.

The star, Mr. Hanford, is possessed of a handsome face, good voice and a robust physique, all of which well fit him for the undertaking of tragic roles. On the whole, he was pleasing, if uneven in his work, and was recalled twice at the end of Act III, the assassination scene, and once at the end of Act IV, where he delivered the well-known oration before the body of Caesar with telling effect before a mob that was more vociferous than numbers.

Mr. Matlack as Brutus was earnest in his work, but scarcely equal to the demands of the role, while the Cassius, Mr. Spencer, was much too melodramatic and inclined to rant. Mr. Hoyt can be forgiven for essaying to play the part of Caesar, seeing that many another man has done so much worse.

The Portia, Maria Drofna, which name is Hanford spelled backwards, I notice was weak, but the Calpurnia of Fannie Hoyt was an improvement on her work.

The scenery and properties were well enough, as they should be, seeing they were used by the late combination of Messrs. Booth and Barrett. If they could only have spoken how they would have cried aloud in grief at the sounds of the mangling of the Bard's great lines in some scenes.

There were many theatrical people in front, listening intently and with the keen appreciation that characterizes their contemplation of the work of their brethren in the art, and among them Mountjoy Walker, "a little disfigured, but still in the ring," several of the people of the MacCollin Opera Company, which lately disbanded here, waiting for the clouds to roll by. All of "The Soudan" people came in from the Academy after their show was over. Julius Caesar to-day, murdered at the matinee, to-day, and at night "Ingomar," the beautiful, will be tried on the public.

A Woman's Collection of Cats.
The good old State of Pennsylvania is nothing if not unique in its variations of acquisitive cleverness. For instance, one may learn that a unique collection of cats is possessed by Dr. Susan Jane-way Colman, of Germantown, Pa., a much-respected lady, who studied medicine, but has not practiced since she inherited her father's fortune in 1883. The cats number twenty-two in all, and include yellow Persian, Manx, white Maltese, English tiger, feather-tailed Turke, and others of unusual and other felines of fish, sky, and other illustrious pedigree. Miss Colman values her pets at $5,000. When, by the accident of too prolific birth, her cat family grows larger than she wishes it to be, she sells the superfluous kittens, and devotes the proceeds to charity.

FOUR HUNDRED YEARS

SINCE THE DISCOVERY OF AMERICA

An Anniversary Not Worthily Kept—The Schools Celebrate and Action Is Taken Against Sunday Opening at Chicago.

The Columbus day celebration as set apart by the proclamation of the President of the United States and the Governor of the State was only observed here yesterday in an informal manner.

All of the Federal officers, the national and State banks and many of the business houses were closed, and those engaged in these institutions availed themselves of a most enjoyable holiday. There was no demonstration whatever of a general nature, and the thorough-fares presented about their usual appearance. In the public schools very short sessions were held, and these were mainly made up by the singing of national anthems and the recitals of appropriate historical sketches of Columbus and his achievements. At some of the schools the programmes were extremely interesting, and were largely attended by the parents of the scholars. There was a lack of any display of flags and bunting save in a very few instances, and the occasion was not one of especial interest except to the school children of the city.

A few flags were displayed from house-tops and fronts of buildings. In the afternoon there was a partial suspension of business and a number of stores were closed and the employees allowed a half holiday.

From news received from our sister cities it was evident that they were paying more attention to the occasion than the capital city.

The Howitzers left early in the morning for Norfolk to assist in the celebration there, and at 10 o'clock Captain Frank Cunningham received a telegram saying "Send us another band." He tried to do so, but could not get the men together in time to catch the next train.

AT MONTE MARIA ACADEMY.

Columbus Day was beautifully and appropriately celebrated at Monte Maria Academy of the Visitation yesterday afternoon. The main hall of the academy building was filled with an interested crowd of spectators.

The platform was prettily decorated in appropriate designs, the names Columbus, Isabella and America taking prominent position, while the figures 1492 and 1892, surrounded by wreaths, spoke eloquently of the history intervening between those two dates.

The programme, as carried out by the girls, composed twelve numbers, including music, dialogues, recitations and the drama. The entertainment was excellent in every feature, and was greatly enjoyed by all present.

The programme was in part as follows: Piano and organ, "Waves of the Ocean," by Misses Davette Corbell, Annie Reddy, Florence Thorp and Mary Dorsett, followed by an original poem entitled "America" by Miss Annie Reddy, and dedicated to the occasion. The poem was recited by the authors.

The second number was a piano solo, "Our Regret," by Miss Mary Hamilton, of Boydton, Va., a former graduate.

Then followed a well-acted drama, called "Ernscliffe Hall," in which Miss Corbell as the Countess did some splendid acting. The other participants were Misses Mary Dorsey, Annie Reddy, Florence Thorp, Lena Pearson and Madeline Pampell.

The next piece was "The Opening Address," a very amusing farce, representing a school, and three little girls very cleverly impersonated boys.

"Mary's Forgiveness" was the name of a well-rendered dialogue by Miss Lillie Volmer and Miss Della Powell.

This was followed by an instrumental duet between Miss Mary Hamilton and Miss Davette Corbell.

Another farce here found place, called "Bridget's Investment," and was well portrayed by Miss Florence Thorp and Miss Agnes Brown, and created much amusement.

One of the prettiest features in the programme was a calisthenic exhibition by twenty little girls.

The chorus songs, which interspersed the other numbers, were very sweet and showed careful training.

AT LOGGERSHEADS.

A Colored Association in Disagreement. Conflicting Statements.

The officers of the Virginia Industrial Mercantile Building and Loan Association are at loggerheads. This is the organization which conducted the colored fair in this city, and have apparently taken active interest in all enterprises looking to the advancement and elevation of the race.

The present disagreement seems to present two sides. Both are here given and the public can arrive at their own conclusions.

Two officers of the association called at The Times office last evening and left statements.

Professor J. H. Blackwell, principal of the Manchester colored public schools, secretary of the organization, presented the following:

The board of directors of the Virginia Industrial Mercantile Building and Loan Association consist of thirty-three members, representing ten different States. Five of these members and five stockholders met at the office of the Association last night, and on motion of George Williams, Jr., declared the regular annual stockholders meeting of the Association held October 13th illegal.

At this meeting the reports of the officers were read and approved. Before the election of officers took place the president, George Williams, Jr., stated that he would not serve for the ensuing year if J. H. Blackwell and Dr. H. L. Harris were elected secretary and treasurer respectively. His objections did not seem based upon good reasons, and both officers were re-elected, whereupon George Williams resigned, but afterwards withdrew it. Hence this meeting last night.

Professor Blackwell and Dr. Harris left the meeting after roll call, stating that they regarded the meeting illegal. In that the stockholders or directors had not been properly notified, but that a very early period a representative meeting of the stockholders would be held.

After they retired E. M. Hewlett, a negro lawyer from Washington, moved that J. B. Blackwell and Dr. H. L. Harris be removed as secretary and treasurer. Carried. Blackwell and Harris claim that George Williams had served notice on only his personal friends, and this work was but his bidding, because they could not increase his management of the affairs of the association.

The other side of the story, here given, was presented by President George Williams, Jr., as follows:

A meeting of the general board of directors of the Virginia Industrial, Mercantile Building and Loan Association was held and J. H. Blackwell, secretary, and E. M. Hewlett, treasurer, were removed. The following officers were elected: George Williams, Jr., president and general manager; R. J. Perkins, first vice-president; Professor Edward D. Scott, second vice-president and auditor; W. H. Bailey, secretary; John P. Brown, treasurer. The president was elected for four years.

The latest thing in sweet pillows is one filled with clover blossoms dried in the sun. A case sixteen inches square filled with these was covered with a light green India silk, embroidered with a design of clover leaves in each corner, with scattering clover blossoms here and there over the centre.

It has been decided by the manager to secure as many of the members of the old "Inside Track" Company as possible, in which Mr. Lyon made his greatest success. The "Inside Track" Company in this case the company will be one of the best on the road.

WOMEN WHO HAVE TO SHOP.

They Do Not Do It From Peasantry, But Necessity.

Men are very prone to ridicule women who shop, and in many cases their sarcasms are not ill timed, but there are many feminine shoppers who find no pleasure in running from store to store, endeavoring to obtain for the money they have to spend the long list of articles needed in a family not overburdened with means.

Perhaps at the very first place the poor little woman sees just what she wants, but the price asked for it prohibits her from thus easily marking off one of the items she has started out to purchase. It may be a perfect match, but she must relinquish it with a sigh and go the round of all the shops until she finds something nearer the figure she can give.

Her taste may be of the super-refined sort that revels in the truly beautiful fabrics that are as truly beautiful in price and far beyond the range of the limited purse, therefore she must wait until she can find something in cheap goods that will not offend her fastidious ideas, yet which comes within her means.

Is it any pleasure for such women to turn themselves to death when they have seen exactly what they want and would gladly have ended their tramp the first hour if their desires and their dollars had jibed? Is it any fun to leave a perfect match and have to take something a whole shade off tone because you cannot afford to buy what pleases the eye but offends the purse? Ah! no. The mothers of families who have incomes sadly inadequate to meet the ever recurring replenishment of the wives of husbands whose salaries do not tally with the every day demands that must be made upon them, they can answer and say truthfully for them shopping has no delight. Much rather would they be obliged to go to the rounds of big and little shops whenever something has to be bought and there is just so much with which to buy it.

Cute little round boxes covered with red paper that looks like leather, come filled with rouge on a saucer and a woollen puff. These little boxes recommend themselves as especially convenient to carry in the pocket, and rouge in this form can be applied with less possibility of detection than any other. The powder diffuses itself better than liquid.

A porcelain basket, tinted with blue and yellow, suspended from a silver pedestal by slender silver chains of antique design, is an afternoon tea bouquet-holder.

"All Unstrung"

This is a woman's way of expressing her feelings, when she is worried by trifles, easily excited, and perhaps hysterical. In reality the nerves are unbalanced and the entire system out of tone. A distressing condition, and one that ordinary remedial means will not rectify.

Brown's Iron Bitters

is more than an ordinary medicine. It will not only harmonize and strengthen, but will re-organize the functions, cure all weakening complaints, and gives a woman nature's greatest blessing—perfect health.

Beware of Imitations.
